PREACHERS AS SOCIALISTS. WISTET SPEAK AT THE CONGRESS.

or the Speakers Avow Themselves Openly as Socialists—The Church, De-morracy, and Socialism as Forces in the World—The Great Discontent of the Poor, EASHINGTON, Nov. 18.-The Rev. Dr. Reese Lalson of Brooklyn opened the second day's needlings of the Protestant Episcopal there congress this morning with an address of socialism. He sketched in outline the there of Henry George and the dream of palamy. Quoting the fable of the man who and the manual land the cold. hilled the goose that laid the golden eggs, he gred adhesion to the present system of social economies, and hold that if labor forced i hange it might kill the goose and lose the piden eggs. He did not believe that the present conditions were as bad as they were ade out to be. Thrift had its reward; enterprise rarely failed to reap its profit. Labor, thrift, capital, and enterprise had wrought conders, seconded by inventive genius. Someoly must be thrifty if capital was to be saved. Were savings made valueless, was the interst bearing power of money destroyed, why should any one save? The great mass of men mid lose the incentive to thrift, and there would be a diminution in the productive power the world. Every one of the socialistic authors was bitterly opposed to investment. Henry George was the leader in that move-ment. To expect thrift and well-being to result from such theories would be to expect the tream to rise higher than its source. There were bitter complaints of the present system of wealth distribution, and it was asserted that is tendency was to enrich the few and Impoverish the many. Was that true? Adam Smith, shundred years ago, had shown that it was not and the facts of to-day bore him out. Interest was steadily diminishing, and the profits of many lines of trade were so low that business would be impracticable if not conducted on so large a scale. Labor profited at the expense of capital. It was not true that the rich were getting richer and the poor getting seerer. The laborer of to-day had planes, had pictures, had a well-supplied table, and en-jored luxuries that were not dreamed of by the laborer of a hundred years ago. The tendency of capital was to push down prices and so help the consumer, who was the laborer. Out of every handred eggs the goose laid 90 at least went to the workman, and not more than 10 to the capitalist. There were abuses under the system, such as vast monopolies and trusts that led to illegiffmate profits. But they were the disease of the system, and to eradicate

it would not be to destroy the body.

Prof. Gould of the Philadelphia Divinity School held that competition meant that two persons or more were trying to get the same thing. In business it meant that one man was trying to get all and leave nothing to his competitor. That was not the proper spirit of self-lore. The community which consumed the dealers' products was steadily pressing for

THREE CHURCHES IN TROUBLE, Episcopalians, Baptists, and Presbyterians of Rutherford Each in a Fight.

There is trouble in three churches in Rutherord, N. J. Before the present rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Francis J. Clayton, assumed charge in 1885, the church was under a lay reader appointed by the Bishop. Mr. Clayton vas the cause of the disbanding of the Altar Society a year or more ago, and as this was the pet of some of the leading society women and of the wives of the most influential church members, it made him enemies. It was declared that he neglected his congregation and meddled in matters which did not concern him. The break came when Mr. Clayton insisted that the Ladies' Aid Society, which had raised money to furnish new pews in the church, should give the contract to a firm of his choosing. The firm presented a bill which the women thought was out of all reason. They protested against its payment, and this bespring. The rector's party won, and his vestry ordered the payment of the bill. The bill was paid, and immediately afterward a considerable number of the most influential members withdrew from the church. During the summer the dissenting members made no move, but in the local papers has Saturday appeared this notice:

There will be Episcopal services held at the rooms of Engine Company No. 2 Sanday morning, 15th inst, at 11 o'clock. Sufiday school will be organized at 10 A. M. All who may be in sympathy with the Episcopal church and are willing to act with those interested in the proposed services are cordialy invited to attach was paid, and immediately afterward a con-the proposed services are cordially invited to attend. Prof. William Esher will officiate.

On Sunday a large number of persons appeared in the hall. Before the services Vostrymen Wickware and Milner arrived, and served this notice upon Prof. Esher:

Inis notice upon Prof. Esher:

In Prof. Esher and all it may energy.

Sceling in the Ratherinal News of this date a notice that Episcopal services will be held in this parish in the rooms of Engine Company No. 2. Hershy, as rector of the parish of Urace Protestant Episcopal Charen, do for and such services, as a violation of canon 7, section 1, title 1, or canon b, section 1, title 1 of the consition and canons of the diocese of Newark, also canon b, section 2, title 1 of the canons of the diocese of Newark.

section, as contained in appendix 1 in the canons of the diocese of Newark.

The services were held, nevertheless. To a reporter Bector Clayton said yesterday that the canons quoted in his notice set forth that no new parish could be formed without the consent of the Bishop acting after consultation with the Standing Committee, and that no lay reader could claim authority except by appointment of the Bishop upon the request and recommendation of the rector in charge. He said he served the notice not in any factional spirit, but because the canons made it his duty to do so. He also said that the disgrunited Episcopalians had several times set, forth their grievances to the Bishop and had been turned away. He added that they had jeoparded themselves legally by taking up a collection in a meeting advertised as Episcopal services, for that would come under the head of obtaining money under false pretences. There was only one legal trensurer in the parish. The matter now, he said, lay in the hands of the Bishop, to whom he had made a report. Trouble in the Baptist Church is also the result of opposition to the pastor. The Rev. William Guthrie Myles is a Scotchman, and had occupied the Baptist pulpit only a year when he resigned a week ago last Sunday. Not long ago a number of church members, who openly said that they disliked their pastor's creed and methods, started an independent prayer meeting, and they now say they will start a new church. Mr. Myles said to a reporter:

Some people try to be so broad and yetthey

pendent prayer meeting, and they now say they will start a new church. Mr. Myles said to a reporter:

"Some people try to be so broad and yet they are of the narrowest kind. They like to make enemies and sects, and because I have talked against it I suppose they do not like it. Some of my sermons. I tear, have hit them, and they have hinted that I should pursue different courses. I feel, however, that I am fully capable of knowing what to do, and when I fall to uphold the dignity of the pulpit I will resign my position as an ambassador of Christ."

In the Presbyterian Church dissensions arose out of the attitude of the pastor, Dr. Buckley, toward an entertainment which the Ladies Ald Society had determined to give on Nov. 11. On the Sunday preceding the entertainment the paster announced from the pulpit that it was postponed one week. This was a surprise to the women and they were angry about it. Dr. Buckley said afterward he wanted his eldest daughter, who was then travelling to be present at the entertainment, and hence he postponed it. This explanation increased the ill-feeling, and the women demanded that the next Sunday he announce that the entertainment was indelinity postponed, meaning that it had been given up on account of the teaster's assumption of authority. The next Sunday he avoided the Issue by exchanging pulpits with Dr. Levins of Passaic. This increased the ill-feeling, and Dr. H. G. Beil has had a considerable following in withdrawing from the church and founding a Unitarian church.

The Trouble with the Stage Hands.

Two more theatrical managers granted the advance of 50 cents per night demanded for the stage hands yesterday. The first was the manager of the Park Theatre, who was visited by the Executive Committee of the Theatrical by the Executive Committee of the Theatrical Protective Union. The stage hands, who waited about on the sidewalk to hear the result, then went to work. At the Thalia. Manager Bosenfeld said he would give the advance. It is not likely that any strikes will be ordered to-night, as a conference is arranged for to-morrow afternoon between representatives of the Theatrical Protective Union's Executive Committee and representatives of the Managers' Association in Manager Daniel Frohman's office, at which the trouble may be settled.

MISS DE GARNO AND MR. CRANE. Their Relations in Brooklyn and Her Pur-suit of Him to Ohio,

Miss Mary De Garno, the Brooklyn young woman who chased Edward S. Crane, the cash-ier of the Cleveland Baking Powder Company. to Dayton, Ohlo, with the intention of compell ing him to keep his promise to marry her, has returned to Brooklyn, so it is said, and is stay-ing with friends. Her whoreabouts are unknown to the public. She was not, as was re-ported from Dayton, one of the belies of Brooklyn society. All that can be learned of her is that early in July or late in June she secured board at Miss Rosa Cossa's house, 177 Schermerhorn street. She said there that she had just come from the Convent of the Sisters of the Sacred Heart in Harlem. She had letters to prove her respectability. She left the house early in September, saying she was going to the West to be married to Mr. Crane. Mrs. Cossa sald yesterday that she had not seen her since, but she had been informed that she had returned to the city. She knew none of the young woman's friends, except one who was a telegraph operator in Court street. The two months she was at the house Mrs. Cossa said that young Mr. Crane frequently called on two months she was at the house Mrs. Cossa said that young Mr. Crane frequently called on her, and Miss De Garno had told her that she intended marrying him. Miss Cossa thought Miss De Garno was a very nice young woman, but she did not know anything about her.

A young woman employed in a telegraph office at the corner of Court and Fulton streets said she knew Miss De Garno and knew that she was a pleasant-spoken young woman. She had not seen her since September.

"She told me then, said the young woman. She had not seen her since September.

"She told me then, said the young woman. She had not seen her since september.

"She told me then, said the young woman. She had been her since september.

"She told me then, said the young woman. That she was going West. I know very little about her. She was introduced to me by Miss Mamie Morianty, who used to be an operator here. Mamie was a friend of hers. I have not seen Mamie for two years, and don't know where she is now.

Crane was said to be a nephew of Mr. Cornelius X. Hoagland, the President of the Cleveland Baking Powder Company. Mr. Hoagland said yesterday that that was not the fact.

"He is a son of wealthy parents in Tippecanoe. O.." said Mr. Hoagland. "His father was an assistant of Dr. C. M. Hoagland, who was an army surgeon during the war and was connected with an Ohio regiment. Young Crane is about 21 years cid, and is modest and retiring. He came here as a hookkeeper for our company, and worked five years as such, he gave excellent satisfaction, and we made him eashier. He was a member of the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn. He boarded there, and I always thought he devoted his evenings to exercise. Last September he went home on his yeardton. He was gone two weeks when I received a letter from him resigning his place. I thought a good deal of him, and wrote to his father wrote back that the young man had got into some sort of trouble with a woman in Brooklyn, and he did not think it desirable for him to return."

Mr. Hoagland added that young Mr. Cra

Mr. Hoagland added that young Mr. Crane was brought up and had always lived in the country, and "was not familiar with the ways of designing women."

"I did not know that he was paying attention to Miss De Garne. All that I know about her is that she lived in a Brooklyn boarding house. I think she was imposed upon. He was a modest young man, and the last man in the world I would think that would be mixed up in a scrape of this kind."

Crane, while he was in Brooklyn, lived at Mrs. Palmer's boarding house, 110 Henry street. Mrs. Palmer said she knew nothing about Mr. Crane's naying attention to Miss De Garno until after he had gone away.

"He left on Thursday," she said, "and the following Saturday a tall and rather pale woman called here and said she wanted Mr. Crane's bicycle. She said she was engaged to marry Mr. Crane and that he had written a letter, asking her to express his bicycle home. Flet her have it. The next day a woman, who said she was Miss De Garno's boarding mistress, called and said that Miss De Garno had gone away.

Mr. Crane was not remembered at the Cres-

Mr. Crane was not remembered at the Crescent Athletic Club house in Pierrepont street.

At the Convent of the Sisters of the Sacred Heart at 132d street and St. Nicholas avenue the Sister at the deor said Miss De Garno never was a student or an inmate of the convent.

MRS. LEAVITT SUES FOR DIFORCE.

She Charges Her Husband, M. B. Leavitt, the Theatrical Manager, with Gross Cruelty Judge McAdam in the Superior Court issued an order yesterday requiring Michael B. Leavitt, the theatrical manager, to show cause why a decree of separation and alimony Leavitt. The order is returnable on Nov. 22. In her complaint Mrs. Leavitt tharges her husband with attempting to force her to fur-nish him with grounds for obtaining a divorce from her, and, failing in this, with manufacturing evidence and attempting to obtain a divorce in Chicago. She also alleges cruel treatment.

According to her sworn statement, Mrs. Leavitt married the defendant in 1830 in Omaha. She was known as Hattie Forrest, a vocalist. Her real name was Brown. He was an end man in a minstrel show. She brought him $300, and for a number of years they played separately in the West, combining their salaries. Then they started a female minstrel show together, she playing the leading part without salary and he taking all the receipts without salary and he taking all the receipts. She now claims that this venture was the foundation of all his after success, and that she is therefore entitled to a large share of the present income of $40,000 a year which she claims he has. About 1880 she retired from the stage, and has since lived with him in the house at 140 West Thirteenth street, which she says was bought with their joint earnings.

from the stage, and has since lived with him in the house at 149 West Thirteenth street, which she says was bought with their joint earnings.

When Leavitt began to acquire wealth, she says, he began to treat her with coldness, and of late with extreme cruelty. Last summer while they were abroad together they quarrelied about his relatives, and upon returning he began a series of assaults upon her. He charged her with infidelity. In September, she says, she received a love letter signed "W" asking her to meet the alleged writer at might at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue. She got her nephew, Louis Wiegand, to go to the place, and there he saw her austand and his brother Abraham lurking about on the watch. She says that Leavitt wrote the letter and that his nephew, Leo Leavitt, made the copy which she received by mail. She has the original in her instant's landwriting.

She says he las abused her frightfully, striking her, threatening to kill her, knocking her down, and trequently spitting in her face. She says ho offered her $1,000 and an annuity of $2,500 if she would give him evidence on which he could get a divorce and she indignantly refused. Several times he locked her out of the house, and once put her out in the street when she was clothed only in a petticont and underwaist.

On last Thursday, she says, while searching his trunk for her eyeglasses, which he had taken from her, she found evidence that he was trying to get a divorce from her in Chicago, in which he falled for $150 for services in following her. She also found at letter from her husband's brother. Ben, in Chicago, in which he falled from the string and told "Mike" that he would have no difficulty in getting a ruling in his favor. She appends a copy of "Mike" that he would have no difficulty in getting a ruling in his favor, she papends a copy of "Mike" that he was I wrote you before faking your trunk. Place your trunk in my house or in a hotel, and then register from Chicago wherever you go."

Making Bules for Letter Carriers.

The Post Office Department has never issued any regular rules to govern the daily duties of letter carriers all over the country. There is a chapter in the book of regulations which specifies a good many things that letter carders must do and a good many things they mustn't do-as, for instance, they mustn't eat luncheon on circuit or deliver letters to people luncheon on circuit or deliver letters to people in the streets. But the carriers do not get copies of the regulations, which are insufficient, any way, so Fostmuster-General Wannaker has anyointed a Commission to make up a complete set of rules for all letter carriers in the country, and publish them for distribution in pamphlet shape. Then no carrier can, as now, evade punishment for wrongdoing by saying he didn't know what the rules were.

Incidentally, Superintendent Follock observed the workings of the delivery system in the New York office with a view to possible reform. He says the delivery all over the country is in the worst possible need of reform, and has been for a long time. This is no fault of the Postmasters or the department, he says, but of Congress and its niggardly policy.

When Commissioner Joseph J. Little was nominated for Congress to succeed Gov. Flower in the Twelfth district, he sent his resignation as a member of the Board to Mayor Grant. The Mayor asked Mr. Little to remain in the Board as long as he could. He was Chairman of the Building Committee, which has had a great deal of work to do. On the day on which the Mayor sailed for Europe Mr. Little again sent a letter of resig-nation to the Mayor, to take effect to-day, His successor will not be appointed until Mayor Grant returns.

Board the Steamship Spree.

Police Captain Hayes has been investigating a rumor that a woman was kidnapped from the Bremen steamer Spree on Tuesday. One of the stories told was that Mrs. E. C. Hearn of St. Joseph, Mo., with her two children and a friend named Miss Stillwell, had engaged passage on the steamer, and that they drove down to the dock in a cab. They had no sooner boarded the steamer than another cab was driven rapidly down the pier. Three men jumped out of it, ran up the gangplank, and in a few minutes they returned with Mrs. Hearn and the children. This version of the story has it that the three men were two Pinkerton detectives and Mrs. Hearn's husband; that the woman was taken off the steamer by force and carried off in the cab before anybody could interfers.

woman was taken on the steamer by force and carried off in the cab before anybody could interfer.

The steamship company's employees on the pier deny that the woman was carried away forcibly. All that Capt, Hayes could learn was that Mrs. Hearn had had a misunderstanding with her husband, and left her home in St. Joseph, t king her two children with her. She telegraphed to Miss Stillwell to meet her at the pier. After she left home her husband communicated with the Pinkerlons, and one of their detectives learned that she was about to sail for Europe. Her husband hustened East, and overtook her just in time. They became reconcibed after a brief interview on the steamer, and Mrs. Hearn consented to go back. Mrs. Hearn and two children were booked to sail on the Spree yesterday, but they did not sail; all the men on the pier who saw the party leave the steamer are unanimous in saying that there was no yielence used. The officers in charge of the pier say the woman could not have been taken away by force because they would not have permitted it.

They Say He Didn't Preach a Partisan Sermon.

At a meeting of the official Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Northport, Long Island, on Monday evening, fourteen members were present, and they unanimously passed resolutions declaring that the reports of dissensions in the church and the report that the paster, the Rev. D. O. Ferris, preached a partisan sermon on the Sunday before election day were erroneous.

Mayor Chapin's Illness.

Mayor Chapin of Brooklyn is still too much indisposed to resume his official duties. Yes terday he was able to go out for a walk, and last night it was reported at his house that he hat hight it was reported at his nouse that he was mending. His physicians have recommended a further period of rest, and it is possible Mr. Chapin may leave town for a change of air and surroundings. Friends of the Mayor say he is suffering with nervous prostration accompanied by a slight fever, similar to the attack from which he suffered at Tarrytown during the summer. He has also been worried over slight pains in the back of his head.

STRACUSE REPUBLICANS AT WAR. Open Hostilities Belween Congressman Sol-den and Postmaster Smith.

STRACUSE, Nov. 18 .- One of the consequences STRACURE Nov. 18.—One of the consequences of the recent election in Onondaga county is an open breach between Congressman James J. Belden and Postmaster Carroll E. Smith. Responsibility for the diminished Republican majority in Onondaga was laid at Congressman Belden's door by Postmaster Smith in his newspaper, the Syracuse Journal, in the most ferocious article that editorial pen could put together. A week after the election the put together. A week after the election the McCarthy Club of this city, a campaign organisation named in honor of a son of the inte Senator Denis McCarthy, held a meeting at which the Congressman was present and made an address The Journal took this as an occasion to bitter ly condemn the Congressman and assail the night the club met to denounce the editor. Joseph Bondy, a leading attorney and a candidate for the Assembly nomination of his party in this countr, made the principal party in this county, made the principal speech. He said that he and his associates in the club had always been workers at the polls, and such men as Carroll E. Smith are enjoying the fruits of their labor. Continuing. Mr. Bondy said:

"When we, in good faith, get together and try to harmonize—we who have always been the workers, who have labored hardest at the polls—this man tries to bring dishonor to our doors. Have we ever bolted a nomination? Is it not known to all how in 1890, when Ignatius Sawmiller was nominated in open Republican Convention, this very Carroll E. Smith bolted that nomination? He is too fresh from the haunts of political treachery to misname honest men because of susplicious spite. It had did bolt that nomination, we are not the 'political thugs' nor the 'political plintes.' He is the man who deserves such epithets. I say on behalf of the Mo-Carthy Republicans that when he insuits a club of workingmen who are using every endeavor to further the interests of the Republican party it is a shame that such a man should remain in office under the appointment of the Republican party."

Postmaster Smith in his paper to-night returns to the charge in these words:

"Congressman Belden's followers and admirers in the Seventh ward, the bolters and heelers constituting the so-called McCarthy Club, are aiready hard at it. These assassins of the Republican ticket in the recent election are eagerly engaged in promoting Republicans who fear not to brand and denounce party treachery wherever its ugly head is raised. Mr. Belden's agents, while crying out for unity and success, are continuing the work of singing Republicans who are neither to be bought nor enjoled into affiliation with political thugs. It is Belden's plan either to rule or ruin, but for once at least he has failed. In the recent election he succeeded in neither of these purposes."

POSTAL CLERKS THINK IT SLANDER. They Take Postmaster Enton to Task For Attributing Thefts to Them,

NEW OBLEANS, Nov. 18.—The controversy over the letters lost in the mails here is growing hot. The principal complainant is the New Orleans National Bank, which laid the matter before Postmaster-General Wanamaker a few days ago, showing that it has suffered heavily from the lack of checks and trade. Postmaster Eaton in an Interview attributed the loss to the postal route clerks, who were, he said, for a large part young men of expensive habits large part young men of expensive habits. Their salaries, he said, are inadequate to indulgs their tastes for cards, for drink, or for the tender sex. He said:

"Now these fellows, before the passage of the law prohibiting the lottery company to use the mails, found it a very easy matter to fileh a letter directed to the lottery company or their agents. Out of such letters they got sums of money varying from $1 to $20 or even more, or they got postal orders which they could collect. When that game was killed they had to look around for some other source from which to get the money. So they turned to the banks, and naturally swooped upon the one whose business was the largest."

The New Orleans National Bank does about 15 per cent. of the total banking business of New Orleans. This interview produced great indignation among the railroad postal clerks, and a meeting was held last night at which indignate speeches were made and a committee was appointed to wait upon Postmaster Eaton and Po tmaster-General Wanamaker. It was also resolved to bring the matter up before the Order of Hailway Postal Clerks at Atlanta. The committee had a rather warm interview with Mr. Eaton. He claimed that he had made no charges against the postal clerks as a class, but had only said that there were dishonest men in all professions, and probably some among the postal clerks.

Mrs. T. Brigham Rishop Says Her Hus-band Has Been Penniless for Six Tears. The examination of Mrs. Sarah A. Bishop before Referee Walter Lindner was continued yesterday. Mrs. Bishop is made a third party to judgment proceedings against her husband, T. Brigham Bishop, by Julia K. Brigham Bishop in 1867. At that time she was an actress playing with John T. Raymond under the name of Louise Davis, and had secured a divorce from Edward Luykins. She owns the house at 131 West Twenty-third street, a small plece of property at Ciliton, N. J., and a strip of land in Brooklyn. All this, she says, was purchased with money accumulated while on the stage. She had no interest in the business of her husband, and remembered what his business was only from the sign on the window. She says her husband has had no money since 1885, and she has had to meet the household expenses. Capt. Mahan's New System of Lighting the Const.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 -With a view of having a series of practical experiments as to the merits and utility of Capt. Mahan's plan of giving each light of the lighthouse establishment a numerical distinguishing characteristic, the Lighthouse Board has ordered the manufacture in France of a fourth-order flashing lens No. 23 for trial at Robbin's Reef. New York harbor. The lens will cost about $4,000, and the experiment will demonstrate whether numerical flashing signal lights can be substituted for the present system of lights. Capt. Mahun's plan is to give each light a separate and distinct number, and to have that number communicated to the mariner by a system of short and long flashes. The off-shore lights are to be white and the in-shore lights are to possess an element of red. The main purpose of the system is to make each light tell exactly its location and to prevent all possibility of its being mistaken for any other light. istic, the Lighthouse Board has ordered the

The Charleston on Her Way to Honolulu.
